

FOOD SERVICE

The production, distribution, and sale of agricultural products influences a nation's sustainability, be it in the area of employment or economical objectives. Operating in this sector requires formulating strategies that encourage satisfactory farm-to-fork food chains and, at the same time, address the requirements of customers while catering to domestic demand.

Meraki has a team of established domain experts that builds and enhances the business performance of organizations working in, or willing to foray into, the Food Services sector. Our end-to-end solutions are customized as per business requirements and capabilities and we continuously strive to create strong industry relationships and work toward establishing a global footprint.

We deliver a wide range of services to organizations which operate or wish to operate in the Food Services sector, in India as well as internationally.
